Applying downside protection factors to a negative return

S&P 500 5-year term indexed strategies offer two types of downside protection factors – a 10% buffer and a 20% buffer. Let’s take a look at how these two types of downside protection work, and how they would have protected against the average 5-year loss of -7.38%:

Downside protection factor	10% buffer	20% buffer
How it works	Protects against the first 10% of index losses	Protects against the first 20% of index losses
How it protects against -7.38% average loss	Because the -7.38% loss fell within the 10% buffer, the indexed strategy would have been completely protected	Because the -7.38% loss fell within the 20% buffer, the indexed strategy would have been completely protected
